Danimex has experience of working in vast areas in Africa where huge fields have been covered with radio communication efficiently. An effective solution conserves the nature and ensures that future generations can enjoy it to its fullest.

When covering and protecting large areas, consistent radio communication is needed. It is vital to be able to be in contact at all times.

Life's mission

Wildlife conservation has become an increasingly important practice and many organisations around the world have made it their life's mission to ensure the best possibilities for endangered species.

The professional technicians at Danimex have years of experience in this field and can guide in all wildlife protection inquiries.
